Thermosoft Floor Heating Promotes Indoor Global Warming with New ThermoKits

As the global warming debate rages, there is a convenient truth that everyone can agree on. People don't have to freeze in their homes this winter with new, convenient-to-install, electric radiant warm floor kits from Thermosoft.

Global warmists are perplexed by below normal (freezing) temperatures and snow covering much of the northern U.S. During the next two weeks, temperatures are projected to be 15 to 25°F below average throughout the Northwest, West, and Upper Midwest. One doesn't have to be an expert to understand that indoor global warming is desirable in winter. To promote indoor global warming this winter, Thermosoft is offering new floor heating kits that include everything needed to install a warm floor.

The new kits, dubbed ThermoKits™, include easy-to-install warm floor mat(s), thermostat with floor sensor, a choice of tool kits and installation instructions. ThermoKits provide soothing, infrared, radiant warmth like that coming from the sun. With ThermoKit's all natural radiant floor heat, a warm, comfortable and healthy indoor environment can be created -- the way nature intended.

Electric radiant floor heat is an expeditious and convenient way to achieve soothing warmth and comfort in problematic cold rooms. Thanks to advanced technology, Thermosoft's warm floor kits provide localized solutions tailored to individual rooms that are economical, energy saving and compatible with standard household electricity as well as alternative energy sources.
